Abstract

Since time immemorial life's mysteries have fascinated us and as the human race makes giant leap advancements in different fields of knowledge, man's eagerness, curiosity to understand life has also similarly increased.

In the effort to understand the secrets of life, scientist, philosophers, and thinkers have spent years of hard labor adopting various means to come to the conclusive truth – the answer to the question – What is life? What is its meaning and purpose? What is the source of everything?

Vedanta (veda – knowledge; anta – end) or the conclusion of knowledge, referred to as the ancient scriptural science of India, gives authoritative answers to these seemingly unfathomable truths; truths which today's advanced sciences have practically very little knowledge of. Therefore, the Vedantic axioms serve as the well-constructed boat boarding which one can, be he a man of science or a spiritualist, understand the Absolute Truth or in other words reach the Ultimate Goal of Life.
